The Wolf King Abigail Krasner Balbale, 2023-01-15 Winner of the Wallace K Ferguson Prize Winner of the Dionisius A Agius Book Prize The Wolf King explores how political power was conceptualized constructed and wielded in twelfth century al Andalus focusing on the eventful reign of Muhammad ibn Sad ibn Ahmad ibn Mardan sh r 1147 1172 Celebrated in Castilian and Latin sources as el rey lobo rex lupus and denigrated by Almohad and later Arabic sources as irreligious and disloyal to fellow Muslims because he fought the Almohads and served as vassal to the Castilians Ibn Mardan sh ruled a kingdom that at its peak constituted nearly half of al Andalus and served as an important buffer between the Almohads and the Christian kingdoms of Castile and Aragon Through a close examination of contemporary sources across the region Abigail Krasner Balbale shows that Ibn Mardan sh s short lived dynasty was actually an attempt to integrate al Andalus more closely with the Islamic East particularly the Abbasid caliphate At stake in his battles against the Almohads was the very idea of the caliphate in this period as well as who could define righteous religious authority The Wolf King makes effective use of chronicles chancery documents poetry architecture coinage and artifacts to uncover how Ibn Mardan sh adapted language and cultural forms from around the Islamic world to assert and consolidate power and then tracks how these strategies and the memory of Ibn Mardan sh more generally influenced expressions of kingship in subsequent periods Open access edition funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities
