

A high-angle, close-up shot of a wooden workbench covered with various electronic components and tools. In the center, there are several black cylindrical capacitors of different sizes. To the left, a large black toroidal inductor is visible. Scattered around are various resistors, integrated circuits, and other small electronic parts. A blue-handled screwdriver lies in the lower right, and a yellow and black soldering iron is in the upper center. The background shows more tools and components, creating a sense of a busy electronics workshop.
