Language Contact Cornelius Hasselblatt, Bob de Jonge, Muriel Norde, 2010 The study of languages in contact is an ever relevant topic in linguistics especially at present times when increasing globalization leads to a number of new contact situations This volume features ten papers on various aspects of language contact by leading specialists in the field In these papers contact induced change in a wide variety of languages is approached from various perspectives reflecting the current state of affairs in language contact studies The first main theme in the volume is related to the linguistic effects of migration both in the present and in the past and both in the standard language spoken by ethnic minorities and in immigrant languages that are influenced by the standard The second theme concerns border areas a traditional treasure trove for the study of contact phenomena The third theme is about contact effects without physical contact as well as the role played by translators in this process Language Contact, Colonial Administration, and the Construction of Identity in Ancient Israel Samuel L. Boyd, 2021-02-15 In Language Contact Colonial Administration and the Construction of Identity in Ancient Israel Boyd addresses a long standing critical issue in biblical scholarship how does the production of the Bible relate to its larger historical linguistic and cultural settings in the ancient Near East Using theoretical advances in the study of language contact he examines in detail the sociolinguistic landscape during the Assyrian Babylonian and Achaemenid periods Boyd then places the language and literature of Ezekiel and Isaiah in this sociolinguistic landscape Language Contact Colonial Administration and the Construction of Identity in Ancient Israel offers the first book length incorporation of language contact theory with data from the Bible As a result it allows for a reexamination of the nature of contact between biblical authors and a series of Mesopotamian empires beginning with Assyria The Harvard Semitic Monographs series publishes volumes from the Harvard Museum of the Ancient Near East Other series offered by Brill that publish volumes from the Museum include Harvard Semitic Studies and Studies in the Archaeology and History of the Levant <https://hmane.harvard.edu/publications>

Language Contact at the Romance-Germanic Language Border Jeanine Treffers-Daller, Roland Willemyns, 2002 The current volume brings together sociolinguistic analyses of language contact along the Romance Germanic Language Border shedding more light on the variable and the universal elements in language contact and shift It covers the whole range of the border from French Flanders through South Tirol Every part of it has been treated by outstanding experts They describe the current state of the art in their portion of the language border and include information on the legal and or practical status of the language border and the status and function of all languages concerned Attitudinal and language planning initiatives as well as the standardisation status of the regionally official and minority languages are discussed Language borrowing code switching and other language contact phenomena are analysed in detail

One Speaker, Two Languages Lesley Milroy, Pieter Muysken, 1995-08-17 Code switching the alternating use of several languages by bilingual speakers does not usually indicate lack of competence on the part of the speaker in any of the languages concerned but results from complex bilingual skills The reasons why people switch their codes are as varied as the directions from which linguists approach this issue and raise many sociological psychological and grammatical questions This volume of essays by leading scholars brings together the main strands of current research in four major areas the policy implications of code switching in specific institutional and community settings the perspective of social theory on code switching as a form of speech behaviour in particular social contexts the grammatical analysis of code switching including the factors that constrain switching even within a sentence and the implications of code switching in bilingual processing and development

Accentual Change and Language Contact Joe Salmons, 2003-08-29 The author presents an original proposal for a shared Celtic Germanic accentual system which has fundamental implications for Proto Germanic Vernacular Universals and Language Contacts Markku Filppula, Juhani Klemola, Heli Paulasto, 2009-01-13 In this book contributors have been brought together to discuss the role of two major factors shaping the grammars of different varieties of English and of other languages all over the world so called vernacular universals and contact induced change Rather than assuming a general typological perspective the studies in this volume focus on putative universal vernacular features significant phonological or morpho syntactic parallels found in non standard varieties of English English based Creoles and also varieties of other languages all of which represent widely differing sociolinguistic and historical backgrounds These universals are then set against the other major explanatory factor contact induced change by which we understand both the possibility of dialect contact or dialect diffusion and language contact including superstratal substratal and adstratal influences The Mainland Southeast Asia Linguistic Area Alice Vittrant, Justin Watkins, 2019-06-04 This book lies at the crossroads of areal typology language contact and genetic affiliation Concerned with mainland Southeast Asia in particular the various grammatical sketches lay emphasis on characteristics shared by unrelated languages The Cambridge Handbook of Language Contact Salikoko S. Mufwene, Anna María Escobar, 2022-06-30 Language contact the linguistic and social outcomes of two or more languages coming into contact with each other has been pervasive in human history However where histories of language contact are comparable experiences of migrant populations have been only similar not identical Given this how does language contact work With contributions from an international team of scholars this Handbook the first in a two volume set delves into this question from multiple perspectives and provides state of the art research on population movement and language contact and change It begins with an overview of how language contact as a research area has evolved since the late 19th century The chapters then cover various processes and theoretical issues associated with population movement and language contact worldwide It is essential reading for anybody interested in the dynamics of social interactions in diverse contact settings and how the changing ecologies influence the linguistic outcomes Language Contacts in Prehistory Henning Andersen, 2003 Every language includes layers of lexical and grammatical elements that entered it at different times in the more or less distant past Hence for periods preceding our earliest historical documentation linguistic stratigraphy the systematic study of such layers may yield information about the prehistory of a given tradition of speaking in a variety of ways For instance irregular phonological reflexes may be evidence of the convergence of diverse dialects in the formation of a language and layers of material from different source languages may form a record of changing cultural contacts in the past In this volume are discussed past problems and current advances in the stratigraphy of Indo European African Southeast Asian Australian Oceanic Japanese and Meso American languages Language Contacts Meet English Dialects Esa Penttilä, 2020-06-12 This book presents a collection of fresh research on language contacts and dialects and the interface between the two The volume celebrates the work of Professor Markku Filppula an eminent scholar in the fields of Irish English Celtic contacts in the history of English and language contacts and vernacular universals in nonstandard Englishes The articles in this volume explore theories and methods employed in the study of language contacts and variation Celtic substrata in Irish and British English and dialect in the British Isles The writers perspectives range from cognitive processing to sociolinguistics and from theoretical and comparative discussions to new empirical corpus based studies

Grammars in Contact Alexandra Y. Aikhenvald, R. M. W. Dixon, 2007-01-04 Languages can be similar in many ways they can resemble each other in categories constructions and meanings and in the actual forms used to express these A shared feature may be based on common genetic origin or result from geographic proximity and borrowing Some aspects of grammar are spread more readily than others The question is which are they When languages are in contact with each other what changes do we expect to occur in their grammatical structures Only an inductively based cross linguistic examination can provide an answer This is what this volume is about The book starts with a typological introduction outlining principles of contact induced change and factors which facilitate diffusion of linguistic traits It is followed by twelve studies of contact induced changes in languages from Amazonia East and West Africa Australia East Timor and the Sinitic domain Set alongside these are studies of Pennsylvania German spoken by Mennonites in Canada in contact with English Basque in contact with Romance languages in Spain and France and language contact in the Balkans All the studies are based on intensive fieldwork and each cast in terms of the typological parameters set out in the introduction The book includes a glossary to facilitate its use by graduates and advanced undergraduates in linguistics and in disciplines such as anthropology
