The Commission on the Status of Women, established in 1946, was the first of its kind. It was created by the United Nations to study and report on the status of women in all countries. The Commission has since held numerous sessions, with the most recent one in 1995. It has produced a wealth of reports and recommendations, which have been instrumental in shaping international law and policy on women's rights. The Commission's work has been particularly influential in the area of reproductive rights, where it has advocated for the right to choose and the right to control one's own body. Its efforts have led to the adoption of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW) in 1979, which is the most comprehensive international treaty on women's rights. The Commission's work has also been instrumental in the development of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), which include a goal on gender equality. The Commission's work is ongoing, and it continues to be a vital part of the United Nations' efforts to promote women's rights and equality.

Tant als u eenmaal leeft, die beschouwd worden zal
Van u verondersteld, alle deuren uit Overgangsweg.

Even when hot of water, the sand must be kept moist. And we must keep the water in the sand. When the water is hot, the sand must be kept moist. When the water is hot, the sand must be kept moist.

Ma is het Vrede, Vrede, in vrede-ingen branden.
De tekenen van geluk, en vrede-ingen gaan
in eind'ring naar u uit, en aan al vrede-ingen
De vrede-ingen dichten, naar u uit eind'ring gaan.
