Infertile Environments Janelle Lamoreaux, 2022-11-18 In Infertile Environments Janelle Lamoreaux investigates how epigenetic research into the effects of toxic exposure conceptualizes and configures environments Drawing on fieldwork in a Nanjing China toxicology lab that studies the influence of pesticides and other pollutants on male reproductive and developmental health Lamoreaux shows how the lab s everyday research practices bring national hormonal dietary maternal and laboratory environments into being She situates the lab s work within broader Chinese history as well as the contemporary cultural and political moment in which declining fertility rates and reproductive governance and technology are growing concerns She also points to how toxicology in China is a transnational endeavor tied to both local conditions and international research agendas and infrastructures which highlights the myriad scales and scope of epigenetic environments At a moment of growing concerns about toxins endocrine disrupting chemicals and climate change Lamoreaux demonstrates that epigenetic research s proliferation of environments produces new kinds of toxic relations that impact multiple generations of humans

Material Culture and Technology in Everyday Life Phillip Vannini, 2009 Focusing on the technoculture of everyday life this book attempts to zero in on the simplicity and the habitual character of the interaction between humans and material objects which is often assumed or taken for granted Because objects are always meaningful in the pragmatic use to which they are directed the material world of everyday life can be seen as a technoculture of its own one made of behaviors as simple and yet as significant as using a lawnmower or decorating one s body In discussing the unique methodological components of the ethnography of the technoculture of everyday life this book begins a dialogue on how we can examine from the participants perspective the interconnections between social agents their technological material practices their material objects or technics and their social and material environment
