Homo Symbolicus

The emergence of symbolic culture, classically identified with the European cave paintings of the Ice Age, is now seen, in the light of recent groundbreaking discoveries, as a complex nonlinear process taking root in a remote past and in different regions of the planet. In this book the archaeologists responsible for some of these new discoveries, flanked by anthropologists interested in primate cognition and cultural transmission, evolutionary psychologists modelling the emergence of metarepresentations, as well as biologists, philosophers, neuro-scientists and an astronomer combine their research findings. Their results call into question our very conception of human nature and animal behaviour, and they create epistemological bridges between disciplines that build the foundations for a novel vision of our lineage's cultural trajectory and the processes that have led to the emergence of human societies as we know them.

When young children first begin to ask why they embark on a journey with no final destination The need to make sense of the world as a whole is an ultimate curiosity that lies at the root of all human religions It has in many cultures shaped and motivated a more down to earth scientific interest in the physical world which could therefore be described as penultimate curiosity These two manifestations of curiosity have a history of connection that goes back deep into the human past Tracing that history all the way from cave painting to quantum physics this book a collaboration between a painter and a physical scientist that uses illustrations throughout the narrative sets out to explain the nature of the long entanglement between religion and science the ultimate and the penultimate curiosity The Archaeology of Southern

Erdos, 2025-07-23 This book adopting a systemic transdisciplinary perspective explores the sociopsychological and the psychosocial interfaces shaping people's lived experiences of liminality It is about life's outstandingly chaotic and confusing moments regularly recurring in or under calamitous circumstances pervading our lives in the 21st century Prospects for constructive change have traditionally been present in transformative liminal settings The broad context of permanent liminality however is conducive to impasses in the process of change The resulting liminal hotspots are characterized by a turmoil of negative feelings and increased suggestibility In the book discursive analyses underpin and illustrate the key points Part I of the book serves as an introduction exploring the mixed potential inherent in language and symbol use in the social construction of transitions and liminal phenomena Part II comprises sociopsychological analyses of the contexts as labyrinths of meaning of today's globalized and mazed societies where economy politics and information communication technologies are closely intertwined to maintain trickster liminality This part includes explorations on two distinct forms of manipulative discourse characteristic of authoritarian regimes highlighting the role of double bind relations that permeate a despotic system to perpetuate unpredictability chaos and repeated entrapments in liminal hotspots The author explores the discursive practices altering the traditional patterns of transformative liminality into the absurdity of permanent liminality with its self-destructive power Part III is about the psychosocial interface focusing on the intersubjective domain of the individual's lived experiences specifically on the phenomenological connections between rites of transition and psychosocial crises Further it comprises explorations on the prospects for transformative liminality inherent in dialogue As a conclusion humans' constructive potential must be coupled with care to benefit from transformations Transitioning from one form of process into the subsequent one remains an intrinsic and mercurial event in human development Let us embrace these moments but embrace them with care Transitions Liminality as Lived Experience is primarily intended for scholars as well as students master's level or PhD in the broad area of social sciences especially in social communication discourse studies counselling semiotic cultural psychology social psychology and clinical social work Biolinguistics at the Cutting Edge

Dialogues on the Human Ape Laurent Dubreuil, Sue

Savage-Rumbaugh, 2018-12-25 A primatologist and a humanist together explore the meaning of being a human animal Humanness is typically defined by our capacity for language and abstract thinking Yet decades of research led by the primatologist Sue Savage Rumbaugh has shown that chimpanzees and bonobos can acquire human language through signing and technology Drawing on this research Dialogues of the Human Ape brings Savage Rumbaugh into conversation with the philosopher Laurent Dubreuil to explore the theoretical and practical dimensions of what being a human animal means In their use of dialogue as the primary mode of philosophical and scientific inquiry the authors transcend the rigidity of scientific and humanist discourses offering a powerful model for the dissemination of speculative hypotheses and open ended debates grounded in scientific research Arguing that being human is an epigenetically driven process rather than a fixed characteristic rooted in genetics or culture this book suggests that while humanness may not be possible in every species it can emerge in certain supposedly nonhuman species Moving beyond irrational critiques of ape consciousness that are motivated by arrogant anthropocentric views Dialogues on the Human Ape instead takes seriously the continuities between the ape mind and the human mind addressing why language matters to consciousness free will and the formation of the human animal self
