Buildings: Marking the Rhythm of English History Richard Barras, 2016-09-23 This two volume book explores how the great buildings of England bear witness to a thousand years of the nation's history. In every age investment in iconic buildings reaches a climax when the prevailing mode of production is operating most effectively surplus wealth is most plentiful and the dominant class rules supreme. During such periods of stability and prosperity the demand for new buildings is strong structural and stylistic innovations abound and there is fierce competition to build for lasting fame. Each such climax produces a unique vintage of hegemonic buildings that are monuments to the wealth and power of those who ruled their world. This second volume presents three case studies of iconic building investment from the eighteenth century to the present day. During the eighteenth century the wealth of the great landed estates funded the golden age of country house building by aristocracy and gentry. During the nineteenth century the Industrial Revolution unleashed an unprecedented wave of infrastructure investment and civic building by the ascendant capitalist class. Since the late twentieth century the power of global financial capital has been symbolized by the relentless rise of city centre office towers. A final chapter argues that these different forms of hegemonic building are a physical manifestation of the underlying rhythm of English history.

Designed to help readers understand and appreciate what great architecture is in its full dimensions of use structure and aesthetic qualities as well as its history this lavishly illustrated book explains specific qualities of each period and the often complex illuminating differences between the periods. This comprehensive volume examines all aspects of architectural history from the Ancient world the Middle Ages the Renaissance and Baroque periods through the modern world. For historians and architectural enthusiasts.

American Architects and the Mechanics of Fame Roxanne Kuter Williamson, 2011-03-01 Why does one talented individual win lasting recognition in a particular field while another equally talented person does not? While there are many possible reasons one obvious answer is that something more than talent is requisite to produce fame. The something more in the field of architecture asserts Roxanne Williamson is the association with a famous architect at the moment he or she first receives major publicity or designs the building for which he or she will eventually be celebrated In this study of more than six hundred American architects who have achieved a place in architectural histories Williamson finds that only a small minority do not fit the right person right time pattern She traces the apprenticeship connection in case studies of Louis Sullivan Frank Lloyd Wright Henry Hobson Richardson the firm of McKim Mead White Latrobe and his descendants the Bulfinch and Renwick Lines the European immigrant masters and Louis Kahn Although she acknowledges and discusses the importance of family connections the right schools self promotion scholarships design competition awards and promotion by important journals Williamson maintains that the apprenticeship connection is the single most important predictor of architectural fame She offers the intriguing hypothesis that what is transferred in the relationship is not a particular style or approach but rather the courage and self confidence to be true to one s own vision Perhaps she says this is the case in all the arts American Architects and the Mechanics of Fame is sure to provoke thought and comment in architecture and other creative fields
