Kindergarten - Math Comments

1. _____ is still unable to count beyond 20. As that is a primary standard, we will need to work with your child more closely to ensure that he/she masters these skills. You can help him/her to master this skill by incorporating math into your playtime at home, and have him/her count larger quantities of fun items such as small snack foods or cards.
2. Your child is confusing the terms "beside", "between", and "below". You can help him/her to understand this concept using stuffed toys, and placing them according to the positional word that you want to demonstrate. Books that focus on position could also be helpful.
3. _____ is showing great progress in math. He/she is starting to understand time related terminology, and is finally able to really tell time! Way to go!
4. He/she finds it hard to differentiate between a circle and a triangle. Have your child identify shapes in your travels and play shape drawing and counting games that focus on those two shapes. We should see improvement with practice.

Children's Reading and Mathematics Achievement in Kindergarten and First Grade Kristin Denton, Kristin Denton

Flanagan, Jerry West, 2002 This report is the third in a series based on findings about young children's early experiences with school from the Early Childhood Longitudinal Study Kindergarten Class of 1998-99 ECLS-K Sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education National Center for Education Statistics the ECLS-K study selected a nationally representative sample of kindergartners in the fall of 1998 and is following these children through the spring of their fifth grade year The study collects information directly from the children their families teachers and schools This report looks at children's school performance during first grade in terms of their reading and mathematical knowledge and skills by relating them to child family and school characteristics The report finds that some of the differences in children's reading and mathematics knowledge and skills by child family and school characteristics that are present as they enter kindergarten persist into the spring of their kindergarten and spring of their first grade year For example poor children consistently score below the national average in both reading and mathematics across the kindergarten year and into the spring of first grade These findings also suggest differences that are beginning to emerge by children's sex By spring of first grade females are more likely to be reading understanding words in context whereas males are more likely to be proficient at advanced mathematics multiplication and division However some differences do seem to wane For example in both reading and mathematics Hispanic children's scores tend to move upward toward the national mean over these two school years The longitudinal nature of the ECLS-K will enable researchers to track these differences in terms of children's third and fifth grade reading and mathematics performance The report also notes that children who bring certain knowledge and skills with them to kindergarten are likely to be at an advantage in classroom learning compared to peers who do not possess such resources The descriptive analyses of the report show that children who have specific cognitive knowledge and skills are read to frequently possess positive approaches to learning and enjoy very good or excellent general health perform better in reading and mathematics than those without these resources Includes data and standard error tables Appended is a table of regression coefficients for the relationship between children's resources and skills to their spring kindergarten and spring first grade reading performance Contains 18 references HTH
