Martyrdom A Guide For The Perplexed:

Martyrdom: A Guide for the Perplexed Paul Middleton, 2011-06-02 It can be said almost without exaggeration that martyrdom has become one of the most pressing theological issues facing the contemporary world Since the attack on the World Trade Center in 2001 the world has had to face up to an Islamic manifestation of martyrdom Martyrdom has a long history as long as individuals have been dying for their faith or cause others have been telling and more importantly interpreting their stories These martyrologies are essentially conflict stories Whether a Christian confessing her faith before a bemused Roman governor or a suicide bomber blowing himself up in a crowded cafe in Jerusalem the way these stories are recounted positively or negatively reflect a wider conflict in which the narrator and his community find themselves Martyr narratives whether textual oral or even a CNN news report do more than simply report a death they also contain the interpretative framework by which that death is understood again positively or negatively When the death of a martyr is reported the way in which that story is told places that death within a larger narrative of conflict which may be regional global or even cosmic The martyr becomes a symbol of the community's desires and hopes or for that matter their terrors and fears but in either case the martyr is representative of a larger struggle and often martyrology contains the vision of how the community envisages final victory over their enemy This book aims to illuminate the way these conflict stories have been told and function principally though not exclusively within Christian Jewish and Islamic communities Continuum's Guides for the Perplexed are clear concise and accessible introductions to thinkers writers and subjects that students and readers can find especially challenging or indeed downright bewildering Concentrating specifically on what it is that makes the subject difficult to grasp these books explain and explore key themes and ideas guiding the reader towards a thorough understanding of demanding material interpreting them until the martyrs ultimately receive a canonical status or second through commemoration as a means of contestation by competing communities who perceive these same people as traitors or terrorists By adopting an interdisciplinary orientation and a cross cultural approach this book goes beyond both the insider admiration of martyrs and the partisan rejection of martyrdoms and concisely synthesises key interpretive questions and themes that broach the canonised unstable and contested representations of martyrdom as well as their analytical connections divergences and afterlives in the present

Cho, 2021-10-21 Sung Cho addresses the seeming contradiction of Herod the Great's massacre in Matthew 2 16 18 questioning why such a tragedy had to occur why it was included in the good news of Jesus and what connection it has to ancient prophecies In creating a reception history of the Massacre of the Innocents Cho progresses through two millennia worth of interpretation and depiction to highlight key works for discussion Beginning with a close reading of Matthew 2 16 18 Cho moves to analyse depictions of the tragedy in the Early Patristic Tradition from the sixth century to the early modern period and thus to the present day complete with an examination of visual interpretations of the massacre Cho's examination provides a positive step to understanding the depths of human suffering with the help of many diverse perspectives

The Moral Psychology of Clement of Alexandria Kathleen Gibbons, 2016-10-04 In The Moral Psychology of Clement of Alexandria Kathleen Gibbons proposes a new approach to Clement's moral philosophy and explores how his construction of Christianity's relationship with Jewishness informed and was informed by his philosophical project As one of the earliest Christian philosophers Clement's work has alternatively been treated as important for understanding the history of relations between Christianity and Judaism and between Christianity and pagan philosophy This study argues that an adequate examination of his significance for the one requires an adequate examination of his significance for the other While the ancient claim that the writings of Moses were read by the philosophical schools was found in Jewish Christian and pagan authors Gibbons demonstrates that Clement's use of this claim shapes not only his justification of his authorial project but also his philosophical argumentation In explaining what he took to be the cosmological metaphysical and ethical implications of the doctrine that the supreme God is a lawgiver Clement provided the theoretical justifications for his views on a range of issues that included martyrdom sexual asceticism the status of the law of Moses and the relationship between divine providence and human autonomy By contextualizing Clement's discussions of volition against wider Greco Roman debates about self determination it becomes possible to reinterpret the invocation of free will in early Christian heresiological discourse as part of a larger dispute about what human autonomy requires
