Richard Gravil, 2007-01-01 The Book considers what it meant to be a Unitarian in the hungry forties what Gaskell understood of Chartism and political economy and attitudes to women's rights It discusses the many ambiguities and instabilities in the book suggesting where the reader may need to take issue with some of the standard critical assumptions about Gaskell's text and considers how she might be compared to Dickens and what Dickens learned from her And it discusses some contemporary i.e. Victorian and recent critical approaches to the book The aim is to leave the reader with a great deal of respect for a novel that is sometimes underestimated while pointing out some of its real departures from the best practice of Realist writers practices that Mrs Gaskell herself did much to invent Mary Barton Elizabeth Gaskell, 1997-04-01 O Jem her father won't listen to me and it's you must save Mary You're like a brother to her Mary Barton the daughter of disillusioned trade unionist rejects her working class lover Jem Wilson in the hope of marrying Henry Carson the mill owner's son and making a better life for herself and her father But when Henry is shot down in the street and Jem becomes the main suspect Mary finds herself painfully torn between the two men Through Mary's dilemma and the moving portrayal of her father the embittered and courageous activist John Barton Mary Barton 1848 powerfully dramatizes the class divides of the hungry forties as personal tragedy In its social and political setting it looks towards Elizabeth Gaskell's great novels of the industrial revolution in particular North and South In his introduction Maconald Daly discusses Elizabeth Gaskell's first novel as a pioneering book that made public the great division between rich and poor a theme that inspired much of her finest work

Mary Barton Elizabeth Gaskell, 2018-10-21 Three years ago I became anxious from circumstances that need not be more fully alluded to to employ myself in writing a work of fiction Living in Manchester but with a deep relish and fond admiration for the country my first thought was to find a frame work for my story in some rural scene and I had already made a little progress in a tale the period of which was more than a century ago and the place on the borders of Yorkshire when I bethought me how deep might be the romance in the lives of some of those who elbowed me daily in the busy streets of the town in which I resided I had always felt a deep sympathy with the care worn men who looked as if doomed to struggle through their lives in strange alternations between work and want tossed to and fro by circumstances apparently in even a greater degree than other men A little manifestation of this sympathy and a little attention to the expression of feelings on the part of some of the work people with whom I was acquainted had laid open to me the hearts of one or two of the more thoughtful among them I saw that they were sore and irritable against the rich the even tenor of whose seemingly happy lives appeared to increase the anguish caused by the lottery like nature of their own Whether the bitter complaints made by them of the neglect which they experienced from the prosperous especially from the masters whose fortunes they had helped to build up were well founded or no it is not for me to judge
