Maritime Security Progress And Challenges With Selected Port Security Programs:

Maritime Security Progress and Challenges with Selected Port Security Programs Government Accountability Office, 2015-06-26 Since the terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 9 11 Congress established a new port security framework much of which was set in place by the Maritime Transportation Security Act of 2002 MTSA and the Security and Accountability For Every Port Act of 2006 SAFE Port Act This framework is implemented through various strategies and plans and the combined efforts of several DHS components

Maritime Security, Progress and Challenges with Selected Port Security Programs U.S. Government Accountability Office, 2017-07-28 Ports waterways and vessels handle billions of dollars in cargo annually and an attack on our nation's maritime transportation system could have dire consequences Ports are inherently vulnerable to terrorist attacks because of their size general proximity to metropolitan areas the volume of cargo being processed and their link to the global supply chain that is the flow of goods from manufacturers to retailers Balancing security concerns with facilitation of the free flow of people and commerce remains an ongoing challenge for federal state local and private stakeholders operating in ports Within DHS several components are responsible for port security activities These activities include among other things promoting maritime domain awareness conducting port facility inspections and screening incoming vessels cargoes for the presence of contraband such as weapons of mass destruction illicit drugs or explosives This statement discusses progress and challenges in key areas of DHS port security programs It is based on work GAO has previously conducted from September 2003 to September 2013 with selected updates conducted through May 2014 For these updates GAO contacted DHS officials and reviewed relevant documents
