Electric Train Set

ASSEMBLY OF TRACK

1. Assemble the sections of track into a circle or oval by inserting the pins of one section into the ends of the rails of the next section. Push the sections together as far as they will go in order to insure a good electrical contact. Do not squeeze the rails together or spread them, as this may change the gauge (center to center between the outside rails) of the track. After the track has been set up and taken down a number of times, the sections may not fit together as tightly as when new. Marx Track Locks will hold track together and make handling easier.

CONNECTION OF TRANSFORMER

1. The transformer in this set is designed for operation on 110-120 volt, 60 cycle, alternating current only. In case of any doubt as to the type of current supplied in your locality, inquire of your power company, before attempting to operate the train.

2. Push the insulation back from the ends of the wires that are fastened to the track connection terminal and connect one to each of the binding posts on the transformer. Assemble the track connection terminal to the track by inserting the upright blades on the terminal into the grooves on the under side of the rails, with the outer blade inserted into the center rail of the track. (See sketch at left.) The other blade will then be in the outside rail of the track.

3. Turn the transformer control lever to the extreme left or "OFF" position and insert the plug on the transformer cord into an outlet furnishing 110 volts, 60 cycles, alternating current.

ASSEMBLY OF TRAIN

1. Place the cars on the track, starting with the locomotive and coupling each car separately until the entire train is on the track.

2. Inspect the train carefully to see that all cars and locomotive wheels are in proper position on the rails before starting to operate the train.

OPERATION OF TRAIN

1. When the train is coupled, all wheels on the track, transformer connected with the proper type of current, you are ready to run the train. Move the transformer lever slowly from the left or "OFF" position toward the right. The train will start and the speed of the train will increase as you move the control lever to the right. To stop the train move the control lever to "OFF."

2. In case the cars jump the track, turn the transformer off immediately or you may cause a short circuit and the transformer will overheat, or burn out. Any metal, such as tinfoil Christmas tree icicles, that touch the center rail will also cause a short circuit and must be removed immediately.

3. If the transformer should smoke or overheat, remove the transformer plug from your outlet immediately until you locate the cause of the short circuit and the transformer has cooled down.

4. The transformer with this train is not equipped with an automatic circuit breaker. It is constructed under Underwriter's Regulations which makes it necessary that the transformer burn out in case a short circuit exists and is not removed immediately.
